

It Means? All Sorts of Things!

Saturday, September 29, 2018
9:00 a.m. to 1:45 p.m.
Rush Creek Christian Church, Arlington

This seminar will look at some different ways in which New Testament passages have been interpreted across the last two millennia in different contexts. We will look at a number of NT scenes that have “travelled” across the millennia to new and different situations to see how people have made meaning of them to address different circumstances across the centuries. This approach, commonly called “Reception history” or a “history of effects” approach, suggests that the meaning we make of biblical texts is not fixed in the texts themselves but is created at particular cultural-personal moments in the interaction between interpreters and texts.

Thirteenth Fred B. Craddock Seminar on the Gospels

Warren Carter,
Professor of New Testament,
Brite Divinity School, Fort Worth, Texas

Warren Carter is the author of fourteen books including What Does Revelation Reveal? (2011), Seven Events That Shaped the New Testament World (2013), The New Testament: Methods and Meaning (2013, with Amy-Jill Levine), God in the New Testament (2016) and Telling Tales About Jesus: An Introduction to the New Testament Gospels (2016).
