PRTH 70223 Evangelism

Spring 2019

Tuesdays 1:00-3:30 p.m.

Three (3) Semester Hours

Instructor: Natalya Cherry

Prerequisites: None

Description of Content: “An exploration into the theology and methods of evangelism in mainline Protestantism, with focus on the development of a congregation’s evangelism ministry” (Brite Bulletin). Declaring the good news of Jesus Christ in the 21st century, amid dismal forecasts for mainline Protestantism, is a matter of mitigating the bitter invective polluting public discourse by listening to understand, at least as much as by proclaiming forgiveness. This course considers theologies, practices, and aesthetics of evangelism, as well as different perspectives on the contemporary situation of Christianity in North America. Through the use of critical reflection on resources, demographic and ethnographic study, creative exercises, multi-media experiences, reflective structured dialogues, and possibly even a site visit or two, students will be able to understand biblical and theological foundations upon which to construct evangelism that is good news for all people, to analyze their context to develop holistic models of evangelism relevant to that context, and to become (and to train others to become) recipients as well as bearers of good news.

This course is required of United Methodist students for ordination.

Class Procedures:

Lectures and informed discussions (in-class and online), creative exercises, papers, presentations, reflective structured dialogues. Possible site visit(s).

Requirements:

1. Presence and informed participation in online discussions and class sessions
2. In-class presentation of a reflection paper (5-7 pages)
3. Demographic/Ethnographic study of the student’s ministry context (5-7 pages)
4. Final Project & Paper (8-10 pages written, plus variation from chosen media)
